History of Southern Families by Boddie

HEALE-HALE of LANCASTER, VA. and TEXAS

Nicholas Hale, Jr., was the son of Ellen and George Heale and grandson of Nicholas Heale, the immigrant ancestor of this family who patented land in Lancaster County in 1657.

George Heale, Gentleman, Member of the Third House of Burgesses, when that body met in Jamestown, owned a large plantation adjoining that of the Ball family, which was named "Epping Forest", and that of the Heale family was "Peach Tree Hill". Ellen, wife of George, in her will mentions her ancestral home as "Cherry Point". In her will this land is left to her daughter and namesake, Ellen, who married John Opie.

Capt. George Heale, son of George and Ellen, was also a member of the House of Burgesses when that body met in Williamsburg. In his will he leaves money for a brick wall to be built around the family buriel plot on the plantation at the head of the Corotoman River. Also that a suitable stone be brought from England for this plot. Although the family worshipped at St. Mary's White Chapel, near what is now Lively, Lancaster Co., Virginia, they were not buried in the churchyard, but on their own place. Mrs. Earle P. McKeller says "We have visited St. Mary's, it is still in use, and the Communion Service sent by Queen Ann is still used." St. Mary's was built in the latter part of the 1600's.

"The house on the old plantation has long been gone. Recently we visited the family burial ground. The burial vaults had been quite large and massive, a single large granite slab being on carved foundations. There were but three stones we could decipher. They were as follows:

"Here lyes intered the body of John Heale, Gent., who departed this life ye 20th day of Dec. 1737 In ye 59 year of age. He was second son of George Heale, Gent and Ellen his wife. He died a bachelor. Observe the clay of man and see The end of such as upright be Because on God they all depend Then troubled day in Peace shall end".

"Here lyes intered the body of Joseph Heale, Gent. He was the 3rd son of George Heale, Gent. and Ellen his wife. He died ....day of August...left wife but no children. He was born ye 8th day of Feb. 1681."

The third stone is evidently that of Catherine Chinn Heale, wife of Capt. George Heale, Jr. It reads as follows: "Here lyes intered the body of Catherine.....George Heale.....his wife

.....departed ye 25th day of Sept. in ye 60th year....they had three sons.....daughters." He was son of George Heale and Ellen..."

Nicholas[3] Heale, Jr., was mentioned first in the will of his father George[2] Heale and may have been his eldest son. He was born in Virginia, before 1679, and married before 1724, Ann.

Children:

I. Francis Heale, b. 1724; m. Adara ------.
II. Nicholas Heale, Jr., b. 1725, m. Ruth ------. (See later)
III. Mary Heale, b. 1728; m. (1) Mr. Dale; (2) Matthew Talbert.
IV. John Heale
V. Ann Heale, b. 1732, m. Wm. Meade.

Nicholas Heale, Jr., son of Nicholas and Ann, was born in Virginia in 1725, and signed his will in 1807 at Washington, Tenn. He first moved to Lunenburg Co., Va., where he married his wife Ruth (who also signed her will in Washington, Tenn., 1807). They later moved to Wautauga District of North Carolina, later Tennessee. They were among the first settlers of that District and helped build the first church in Tennessee, the Baptist Church at Sinking Creek.

Children:

I. Richard Heale (Revolutionary Soldier), b. 1749.
II. William Heale
III. Nathan Heale (Rev. Soldier), b. 1757.
IV. Amon Heale, (Rev. Soldier), b. 6-16-1759; m. Mary----- (See later)
V. Nicholas Heale, Rev. Soldier, b. 1762
VI. Joshua Heale, Rev. Soldier
VII. John Heale, Rev. Soldier
VIII. Elizabeth Heale, m. ------ Cage
IX. Ruth Heale, m. ------ Haile
X. Sarah, m. ------ Gray.

Amon Hale, son of Ruth and Nicholas Heale, Jr., was born in North Carolina June 16, 1759, and died at Washington, Tenn., Dec. 4, 1843. He applied for a pension April 17, 1833, from Washington Co., Tenn. "While an infant he was taken by his parents from North Carolina to Baltimore Co., Maryland. He was a citizen of said county, when he there volunteered under Capt. Joshua Stephenson's command on the approach of the British fleet. Guarded the magazine and served one year in the Militia. Loyd Fort of Washington Co., Tenn., declares that he has read the declaration of Amon Hale and that deponant volunteered and served with Amon Hale in militia under Capt. Stephenson, they were sent to guard the powder and stores taken from Baltimore when the British appeared in the bay. Served one year". Amon Hale married Mary, Sept. 30, 1785. She was born in 1764, and died Jan. 29, 1849.

Children:

I. Elizabeth Hale, b. 9-1-1786.
II. Uratha Hale, b. 9-11-1788
III. Jesse W. Hale, b. 10-16-1791

BEALE-HALE of LANCASTER, VA. and TEXAS

Nicholas Hale, Jr., was the son of Ellen and George Hale and grandson of Nicholas Hale, the nonlayer ancestor of this family who planted land in Lancaster County in 1657.

George Hale, Gentleman, Member of the Third House of Burgesses, when that body met in Jamestown, owned a large plantation adjoining that of the Hall family, which was named "Spring Forest", and that of the Hale family was "Hale's Tree Hill". Ellen, wife of George, in her will mentions her ancestral home as "Cherry Point". In her will this land is left in her daughter and namesake, Ellen, who married John Lane.

Capt. George Hale, son of George and Ellen, was also a member of the House of Burgesses. Upon that body's rolls is William Berry. In his will he leaves money for a brick wall to be built around the family burial plot on the plantation at the head of the Corotoman River. Also that a suitable stone be brought from England for this plot. Although the family worshipped at St. Mary's White Chapel, near what is now Lively, Lancaster Co., Virginia, they were not buried in the churchyard, but on their own place. Mrs. Lucie P. M. Waller says "We have visited St. Mary's, it is still in use, and the Communion service used by Queen Anne is still used." St. Mary's was built in the latter part of the 1600's.

"The burial on the old plantation has long been gone. Recently we visited the family burial ground. The burial vault has been quite large and massive, a single large granite slab being on carved foundations. There were but three stones we could decipher. They were as follows:

"Here lyes interred the body of John Hale, Gent., who departed this life ye 19th day of Dec. A.D. 1[illegible] in ye 38 year of his age. He was second son of George Hale, Gent and Ellen his wife. He died a bachelor. Observe the day of man and as The end of each as straight be Because on Can they all depend Then resolved day in Peace shall end."

"Here lyes interred the body of Joseph Hale, Gent. He was the 3rd son of George Hale, Gent. and Ellen his wife. He died ....day of August....left wife but no children. He was born ye 6th day of Feb. 1[illegible].

The third stone is evidently that of Catherine Ellen Hale, wife of Capt. George Hale, Jr. It reads as follows: "Here lyes interred the body of Catherine.... George Hale.... his wife

.....departed this life ye 2[illegible] day of Sept. in ye [illegible] year.... they had three sons.....daughters. The eldest son of George Hale and Ellen....

Nicholas Hale, Jr., was mentioned first in the will of his father George Hale and may have been his eldest son. He was born in Virginia, before 1[illegible] and received Before 1721, sons.

(Children)

I. Charles Hale, b. 1724; m. Mary [illegible]

II. Nicholas Hale, b. 1726; m. Ann [illegible] (see later)

III. Mary Hale, b. 1732; m. (1) Jno. Hale; (2) Matthew Talbert.

IV. John Hale.

V. Ann Hale, bt. 1737; m. Wm. Mosby.

Nicholas Hale, Jr., son of Nicholas and Ann, was born in Virginia in 1723, and signed his will in 1807 at Washington, Tenn. He first moved to Lunenburg Co., Va., where he married his wife Ruth Pendleton about her will in Washington, Tenn., 1807?. They later moved to Mecklenburg District of North Carolina, Tennessee. They were among the first settlers of that district and helped build the first church in Tennessee, the Upper Stoney Creek at Stoney Creek.

Children:

I. Richard Hale (Hero-Revolutionary Soldier), b. 1749.

II. William Hale.

III. Nathan Hale, Soldier, b. 1752.

VI. Jesse Hale, Pilot, Soldier

VII. Elizabeth Hale, m. [illegible] Eagan

IX. Ruth Hale, m. [illegible] Hale

X. Sarah, m. [illegible] Gray.

Amos Hale, son of Nicholas and Nicholas Hale, Jr., was born in North Carolina, June 16, 1756, and died at Washington, Tenn., Dec. 8, 1842. He applied for a pension April 17, 1834, from Washington Co., Tenn. "While on furlough he was taken by Sir Patrick from Hale's Tavern to Hillsboro Co., Maryland. He was a citizen of that county, when he there volunteered under Capt. Joshua Stone, Lieutenant Commanding, in the defense of the British fleet. Tarried in service and served one year in the Militia. Loyd Fort of Washington Co., Tenn., declares that he has read the [illegible] of Amos Hale in militia under Capt. Stephenson, and served with Amos Hale in militia under Capt. Stephenson. They were sent to guard the powder and stores taken from Hillsboro when the British approached in the day, served one year." Amos Hale married Mary, Sept. 10, 1790. She was born in 1764, and died Jan. 27, 1842.

[1] Roots In Virginia, by N.C. Hale, listed this John Hale as the husband of Nancy "Ann" Overstreet. It is believed that this statement is in error for the following reasons: John Haile, husband of Nancy "Ann" Overstreet, was married by 1772, and would have been born prior to 1752. We note that all of Richards other children were married in 1780's, 90's, & 1800's which would indicate that they were born in the 1760's or later. It is also noted that some researchers give the birth of Francis Haile as 1724. If this date is close to Francis's year of birth, he could not have had a grandson born in 1752. It is know that the families of Nicholas & Ann (Long) Haile, and Francis & Adra Haile resided in approximately the same location in Bedford County, Virginia. There appears a good chance that John, son of Richard Haile, wed Mary, dau of Lewis Haile of Grayson Co., Virginia.

[1]Bedford County Records copied by Mrs. Robert G. Hutchison, Nov 1985. Also "Oct 1799 Lewis Hale, orphan of Richard - Stephen Haile, Guardian."

(As the above records indicate, Elizabeth Edmondson, daughter of Richard Edmondson, wed first, Richard Haile, and she wed second, John Craighead in 1786. Her apparent son and daughter, John & Elizabeth Haile, witnessed the Will of Richard Edmondson in 1788. John Craighead was made guardiasn of her son Richard Haile in 1791. John Craighead referred to her as Betty, a nickname for Elizabeth, in his Will dated 1808. He also named daughters, Nancy "Ann" Haile, wife of James Lewis Haile, and Jane "Jenny" Haile, wife of James Edmondson Haile. (Wife, Betty, may represent a third marriage, i.e., " John Craghead & Betsey Robinson md. Oct 28, 1799 @ Bedford Co., Va... Consent of Lucy Robinson, mother of Betsey. This marriage may also be for John Craighead, Jr. We know Richard's son, Lewis is referred to as an orphan in Oct. 1799.

It would appear that Richard Haile's brother, Stephen, helped raise part of his deceased brother's children as Stephen Haile, Sr. is referred to as their grardian. It would appear, too, that Richard & Elizabeth Haile had a son, Stephen, born after Richard's Will was written on Nov 19, 1783. This son was raised by his uncle, Stephen Haile, Sr., who is refered to as Stephen Haile, Jr.'s guardian in 1799.)

Records of Essex County.
Tappahannock, Virginia.
Will Book No. 14. page 171.

In the name of God, Amen, I Bennett Browne of Essex County Virginia, Merchant, being in a declining state of health, but of sound and disposing mind and memory, do make this my last will and Testament in manner following, hereby revoking and making void all former wills by me made: First I recommend my Soul to the mercy and Goodness of God thro Jesus Christ our Lord, and my Body to be buried in such decent and private manner as to my executors hereafter to be named shall seem fit

And as to my worldly Estate, I give devise and bequeath the same as follows Vizt:

I hereby lend to my affectionate wife Mary Browne the Plantation in King William County which I at present occupy during the life of her Mother Mrs Sarah Campbell, and at the death of the said Mrs Campbell I lend my dear wife the tract of land whereon the said Mrs Campbell at present resides, and the Houses lately built by me, for and during the term of her natural life. I also lend to my said wife one other tract of land known by the name of Haymers containing by survey sixty acres together with the Mill and other improvements thereon, for and during the Term of her Widow-hood; and it is also my will and desire that my said wife may have the liberty of cutting firewood, and drawing such supplies of rail timber as she may find necessary for plantation purpuses , from black Jack Ridge. I give and bequeath to my son Charles the above two tracts of land with the mill and other improvements thereon, to him my said son Charles and the Heirs of his Body lawfully begotten forever.

I give and bequeath to my said son Charles one other tract of land known by the Name of Black Jack Ridge, which I purchased from Isaac Williams and containing by survey one hundred acres, to him my said son Charles and the Heirs of his Body lawfully begotten forever: But should my son Charles die before he comes of age, my will and desire is that the above three tracts of land and Mill devised to him may be equally divided between my sons Basil and Andrew Cochrane.

I give to my said son Charles two negroes Phill and Linder which were left to him by his Grand-Mother Mrs Priscilla Browne of Maryland decd.

I give to my Daughter Sarah three negroes, Joe, Phillis and Ned, which were left to her by her Grand-Mother aforesaid

I give and bequeath to my much beloved wife the Carriage I may die possessed of, and the Horses and Harness therewith used, to her own proper use over and above the third part of my personal estate hereafter lent her

I lend my said wife during her life all my Househould and kitchen furniture, Plate, China, Beds, Bed and table linen, and it is my will Book 8. p.320. George Billard. 20 April 1694. 139 acres in King and Queen County. Adjoins land of Wm Collins and that of Hugh Chinn (?). Due for importing 3 persons.

Book 8. p.386. Capt Richard Haile of the County of Essex. 26th Oct. 1694. 720 acres "lying in the Ferrest between Rappahannock and Mattapony river". Adjoins Goldman's land, the line of Robins by an old Indian path in a slash, the land of Majr Robert Beverley deceased. 450 acres of this land granted to Theophilus Whale and Daniel Swellivant 23 Sept 1674, the residue being "overplush Land". Due for importing 6 persons.

Book 8. p.391. Robert Beverley. 26 October 1694. 6000 acres in King and Queen County "formerly Rappahannock and New Kent Countys". Adjoins 4600 acres formerly surveyed and taken up by Captain Lawrence Smith, also adjoining the Beaver Dams near the head of a reedy branch. The said land formerly granted to Capt Lawrence Smith and Capt Robert Beverley 16 Nov 1674 and by them deserted. Now granted by order of the General Court 27 April 1694. Due for importing 130 persons. Their names listed in original records in Land Office.

Book 8. p.414. James Taylor. 21 April 1695. 500 acres in King and Queen Co., on branches of Aquintanaco Swamp. Adjoins Capt. William Claybourne's lower corner, the land of Anthony Haines. This land formerly granted Collo Robt Abrahall 5 May 1662 and by him deserted. Due for importing 10 persons.

Book 8. p.425. Edward Guthrey. 21 April 1695. 600 acres in King and Queen Co., formerly Gloucester Co. Adjoins land of Edward Simpson, land of Ashwell Battin or Leonard Chamberlain, the main swamp at the head of Pepeticoe Creeke, said Simpson's second Devident. This land formerly granted to Edward Simpson 4 Dec 1654 "under the Ursurpation of Oliver Crumwell" and now renewed to Edward Guthrey. Due for importing 12 persons.

Note: The above patent tends to comfirm my thought that some of the land later of King and Queen was patented originally as of Gloucester. But bear in mind that this would not apply to patents dated prior to 1652 when the whole section had been known for a number of years as York County. B.F.

Book 8. p.427. Alexander Cambell. 21 April 1695. 195 acres "in Stratton Major parish in King and Queen County formerly called New Kent County". Adjoins land of John Garrett, the Ridge path and Roger's land. This land formerly granted to Richard Threder 28 Sept 1681 and by him deserted. Due for importing 4 negroes.
Note: Do not suffer the false illusion that in producing this abstract I have offered any assistance to the Campbell genealogists. There has been a Sandy Campbell and a Sandy Brown in every Virginia community at every period that I ever heard of. John Smith and John Jones ditto. As for the Campbells of King and Queen, Essex, Caroline and Hanover, who please can untangle their intermarriages and interrelationships ? Even our fine old Captain Whitaker Campbell, who I've tried my best to show did actually devote his energies in enlisting troops for our Revolution, is open to question. Persons have asked me if I have ever seen any authentic record that he was even a Captain. He was. B.F.

LAND PATENTS

The following are abstracts of the first land patents issued in the name of King and Queen Co. It is evident that there must have been a well established community before the county was ever created as such. This also makes it evident that the original patents for what is now much of King and Queen were issued for Charles River, then York, and later New Kent. Further, I believe some of these patents were issued as of Gloucester. If my strength holds out I shall endeavor to identify these patents. Two attempts have already been made to do this, but unfortunately I do not know the gentlemen who did this work, which has never been published. Unquestionably they would assist in making this data available if only requested to do so.
In case I may never accomplish this identification the following memo may assist future searchers.

(1) For King and Queen lands prior to 1691 examine patents for York, New Kent and possibly Gloucester.
(2) Include all lands as appearing N.E. of Mattaponi River.
(3) Include all lands as bordering on the following creeks and swamps which appear on Fry and Jefferson's map.
Askamancock
Aquintonocco
Hartquin
Tuckahoe
It might be remarked that Col. Joshua Fry knew this section well, his wife Mrs. Mary (Micou) Hill having considerable holdings here.
(4) Also from other land patents.
Whorecock (Horecock) Swamp.
To North of Poropotank
The Dragon Swamp
(5) And of course the patents of all persons whose names appear as owning land on the boundries of established King and Queen patents.
(6) Do not overlook the fact that a Grant and a Patent are not absolutely the same thing.

Beverley Fleet.

Land Office. Commonwealth of Virginia.
Capitol Building, Richmond, Virginia.

Book 8. p.188. To Robert Bird. By order of Court 18 April 1691. 134 acres in King and Queen, formerly New Kent "in the forke of a branch that runneth into Exolls branch", etc. This land formerly granted to Gabriel Hill 29 Nov 1665 and by him deserted.

Peter Johnson, who later lived in what became Rappahannock County, is the only known soldier of the massacre of 1644 whose name survives to us. In 1652, in what was then part of Northumberland county, he was sick and was declared levy free. (Northumberland County Records, Vol. I, p. 13.)

In 1650, six men of old Northumberland crossed into Maryland and took from the King of Patuxom two Indian women and three beaver skins. For this offense they were required each to give the king a match-coat. (Northumberland County Records, Book O, page 42.) Another raid of a similar nature was made by six men against the King of Murkekotos. They also were required to pay a fine of a matchcoat each. (N. O, p. 51.)

Though the law prohibited the lending of a gun to an Indian, Mr. John Motram, Gent., did lend two guns to Indians. The guns were seized by Wm. Cornish and Peter Preseley. Mr. Motram was required to give bond to appear in James City to answer to this complaint in 1651. (N. O, p. 59.) Wm. Harper was found guilty of the same offense, and was fined 1,000 pounds of tobacco in 1654. (L. I, p. 164.) Andrew Taylor was found guilty of shooting and wounding an Indian, and was bound out for a short time to pay the fine. (L. I, p. 43.)

Still the settlers continued to lend guns to Indians. Dominic Sherott violated this law, and Mr. Denby delivered it to the Indian and poured powder and shot to load it. They were discovered and were fined 1,300 pounds and 700 pounds of tobacco respectively. Record is made of an Indian who, not skilled in the use of this type of arms, accidently killed himself in 1654. (L. I, p. 163).

Nicholas Hale suffered the penalty for lending an Indian a gun. (L. I, p.93) This gun was found at the house of Margaret Grimes. (L. I, p. 163.)She was the wife of Edward Grimes and lived on land adjoining the Rappahannock Indians. This event was probably the cause of the trouble with the Rappahannock Indians which is recorded as follows in Hening: "In 1654 Capt. John Carter was instructed by the House of Burgesses to raise a company of 40 men from Northumberland, 30 from Westmoreland, and 100 from Lancaster County. The counties to furnish arms and ammunition." They were to meet the first Wednesday in February at the house of Thomas Meader,(also spelled Meador) and march to the Indian town of the Rappahannocks to receive such satisfaction as he should see fit, but to abstain from hostility except in case of attack. "Capt. Henry Fleet and Wheatliff attending as interpreters."

Berkeley with little, if any, opposition returned to his place, Green Springs, where he again established himself as governor.

While Bacon was sick, Indian troubles were still continuing in the Rappahannock section for, on October 20, 1676, when Edward Gunstacker, a friendly Indian, made his will, he stated in it that he was about to depart with an expedition of the English against his countrymen, the Indians.(D.6B, 75.) There appears to have been fighting on this last expedition, for soon afterwards witnesses established the oral will of John Godfrey who had perished when he left his home and went into the freshes (fresh water section of the river). (W. 2, 47-48.)

There have come down to us the names of only a few of those who were killed or murdered by the Indians in this great and final struggle for supermacy. Thomas Dart of Rappahannock was killed by the Indians. Soon afterwards -------Bowin was murdered by them. (W. 2, 46.)

Though the names of most of those who perished in this struggle cannot be conclusively proved, yet during this period a much larger number of wills than usual was probated. In the years preceding the rebellion only about twelve wills were probated annually; and, in the years following, about the same number. The greater number during the rebellion was doubtless due to the fact that many fell in the struggle, or perished because of the hardships incident thereto.

Among the wills probated in Rappahannock County at this time were those of Thomas Page, Nathaniel Baxter, Lawrence Washington (brother of Col. John Washington, who was the grandfather of George Washington), Richard Simms, John Penn, Robert Bishop, Peter Mills, Thomas Jenkins, Thomas Ellverd, Richard Clarke, Elizabeth Kirk, Hesekiah Turner, Robert Hopkins, William Ealles, Roger Williams, Enoch Doughty, James Toome, James Dempster, Edward Rouzee, William Kenny, George Nicholls, Thomas Hawkins, John Killman, John Prosser, William Browne, George Nangle, Thomas Blissed, Nathaniel Frith, John Godfrey, Thomas Dart, Thomas Pannell, Henry Creighton, Timothy Pells, Samuel Scott, John Curtis, and John Mott. Practically all of these wills were recorded in the summer and fall of 1677 after the re-establishment of law and order in the county. Some were recorded earlier in Lancaster Co., where the county courts continued to function regularly, and whither the wives and families of the deceased had fled and were dwelling safe from Indian slaughter.

OLD RAPPAHANNOCK COUNTY

CHAPTER 7

THE COLONISTS

There has been much confusion regarding the social status of the English colonists who came to Virginia. These may be divided into three groups: first, the free man who paid his own passage; second , the man who had to work out his passage; and third, the political prisoner. When John Doe got fifty acres of land for bringing over William Roe, it does not follow that Roe is the indentured servant of Doe. It may mean only that Roe sold his head-right to Doe. There are three out of four chances that Roe, a free man, paid his own passage to the commander of the ship, and upon his arrival here went out and looked for a place or a job as a man might do today; or Doe may have loaned Roe money for the trip, and been paid with his head-right. A head-right entitled a man to fifty acres of land.

After emigration to Virginia had become popular, the commanders of ships found no difficulty in persuading people to come to Virginia. Whether passengers paid for themselves or came indentured to some Virginia planter, the captain received pay for bringing them over. If he brought them over at his own expense, he received credit for it and was entitled to rights for land. He, in turn, frequently sold the rights thus acquired, as did Captain Sheapherd to William Moseley.

Large numbers of Royalists, as formerly stated, came to Virginia in the days of the Commonwealth. Some of these were men who had succeeded in preserving their fortunes in England and were able to establish themselves at once as planters in Virginia. Many, however, fled from England with little in the way of tangible possessions. They pitted their gallantry and courage against the hardships of pioneer life. Those who came without funds indentured themselves as servants till they could work out their passage and establish themselves. They constituted the second group. Later,under the favor of the government of Charles II., they acquired wide influence and large tracts of land. These men,from indentured service, rose to the posts of burgesses, justices, and military commanders. Many young men considered it wise to work as indentured servants until they became acclimated and learned to make a living in Virginia.

About 1655, Cromwell sent over a large number of Irish prisoners whom he caused to be sold as slaves. These were among a very few white men ever held as slaves in Virginia, and they were ordered set free after serving, usually, six years. Charles II., in like manner, sent to Virginia many political prisoners who were sold into servitude. Soon their term of service expired; they became free; and in nearly all cases acquired land, thus becoming free-holders and voters. They were, for the most part, of sturdy, middle-class English stock of the type that was willing to fight and to die for an abstract principle, for religious freedom, and for the rights of the Saxon English. Their descendants married the descendants of the Cavaliera and produced a type which combined the dash and gallantry of the latter with the unswerving devotion to right of the former; and men who, clinging to their rights and freedom as Englishmen, fought the American Revolution and established a free country, the ideals of whose institutions they have since defended and preserved with their lives.

The colonists who came to Virginia in the Seventeenth century were, to a large degree, the very best stock of the nation from whence they came. They were men of vision who faced probable death and certain suffering and hardship to establish themselves in the new land. They crossed the sea in small wooden ships, hazarding their lives in making the venturesome journey. They wanted freedom and the plenty that would be theirs if they had the strength to wrest it from the soil. They exchanged the cramped living and war-trodden soil of England and the Continent for the free spaces of Virginia. If they could survive disease and encounters with the savages their future was their own. They had within them those qualities that go to make a strong and virile nation. They planted the seed of real Americanism that was to blossom in spite of tyranny and oppression.

Into Tidewater Virginia came a peculiarly high type of settler. Into the valley of the Rappahannock came the Cavaliers in unusually large numbers. A remarkably large proportion of the country's leaders have been descended from the early settlers of this river valley. Rappahannock County included parts of Westmoreland, King George, Caroline, Spottsylvanie, and Stafford, and all of Essex and Richmond Counties.

In 1766, the famous pledge known as the Richard Henry Lee Bill of Rights was signed at Leedstown, Westmoreland County, in that part that had once been included in old Rappahannock County, and most of the signers lived within the bounds of the old county. George Washington was born only five miles from the line of old Rappahannock. His grand-father, Col. John Washington, had extensive lands in this county. James Williamson, a justice of the old Rappahannock court, who resided at Cobban Park near Warsaw, had a daughter, Margaret, who married William Ball of Lancaster County, an ancastor of George Washington. At the age of twelve, Washington himself moved into the area that had been part of Rappahannock County, and received much of his childhood training there.

James Madison was born near the center of the bounds of Rappahannock County, his ancestors being among the first settlers here. It was he who won the freedom of the seas for Americans. He became America's greatest Constitutional statesman, and in his writings blazed the trail that made possible the application of the Constitution as law.

In old Rappahannock were the Zacharys and the Taylors, ancestors of a fourth president, descended from the early settlers of this county. Through Zachary Taylor as presedent the addition of Texas to the United States was possible. Nancy Hanks, mother of Abraham Lincoln, is thought to have been descended from the Hanks family of Rappahannock County. Robert Edward Lee was born but five miles from the bounds of the old county. His early American ancestors had landed here. Here lived the ancestors of at least these five who are among the best loved of all Virginians. Here today live their kinsmen. It is impossible to estimate, much less to name, all the great men of America who could trace their ancestry back to the pioneer settlers of old Rappahannock County.

It was here that lived the ancastors of Francis Scott Key, author of our national anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner." The families of many state governors lived here in the Seventeenth century. John Clarke, great-grand-father of Generals George Rogers Clarke who took the great northwest territory, and his brothers, Jonathan Clarke and Gen. William Clarke, of the Lewis and Clarke Expedition, who conquered the far northwest, lived here.

The following are the names of just a few of the men of international fame whose ancestors lived in old Rappahannock:

General Henry Young and General Woodford of the Revolutionary War.

General Wingfield Scott of the Mexican War, and General R. S. Garnett who was with him. In the Civil War Gen. J. N. Crittenden was under Gen. Scott.

R. M. T. Hunter was Secretary of State of the Confederate States of America.

OLD RAPPAHANNOCK COUNTY

PARISHES

In the pioneer days of Charles River Shire, no white men lived in the Rappahannock Valley. As Englishmen moved northward along the west shore of Chesapeake Bay from Charles River (now York), the Church followed. The section became known as Cheskyack or Chesapeakus, and is supposed to have reached north to the Rappahannock River.

In 1640, John Rosier, Clerk, was the officiating cure of York and Cheskyack Parishes. (MCGC-496.). During the massacre of 1644 .. residents of Cheskyack were almost, if not entirely, driven out; and there was little, if any, parish work done north of the York until 1649, when the treaty with Opecancanough forbiding colonization beyond the York River was repealed, and white men came in numbers across the York into what is now Gloucester and into the Rappahannock River Valley.

The date, therefore, of September 1, 1649, which marks the permanent settlement of the Rappahannock River Valley, may also be considered as the date on which the religion of Jesus Christ was brought into this valley; and, though the principal instrument, the Church of England, by which it expressed itself was dulled by secular politics and its doctrines modified by the domination of the English government, yet it came and served and survived in the hearts of men.

JOHN ROSIER

The section north of the Rappahannock River, early called Chickacoon, became a part of Northumberland County about 1648, and was known as the Parish of Northumberland, with John Rosier, clerk, officiating here also as a minister in 1649.

John Rosier should be regarded as one of the great pioneer preachers of early colonial Virginia. A minister of the north side of the York River in 1640, he was pioneering with the Church in Northampton County from 1641 to 1646. (P.B.2, p. 69.) He was preaching in Northumberland from 1650 to 1653; and there in 1652 was a signer of the oath of allegiance to the Commonwealth.

Though he was regarded as a non-conformist, he served under both governments of England; and the lessons of the gospel he preached found a place in the hearts of the pioneers on the frontiers of Virginia. (Northumberland O,41 & 47); P.B.2, 69 & 274; P.B.3, 37 & 327.)

EARLY CHURCH SITES

The history of the parishes of Old Rappahannock County is checkered. At times the church made real progress; and again outside influences forced themselves upon the people, hindering and casting down the work of the church, and sometimes causing it to be looked upon as a mere catspaw of a tyrannical king or governor.

The primaeval forests, the entire lack of roads, and the ever present danger of ambush caused all of the first settlements of this section to be built along the rivers and large streams. On these every man could travel to church with considerable safety in his own boat with his gun by his side. In open water danger from lurking foes was minimized. In reality the river was the one great highway from one end of the county to the other with the creeks and their branches serving as feeders. For this reason all early churches and courthouses were located near the water.

On two of the larger creeks, not far from the river, Charles Grimes, the first preacher to settle in the upper Rappahannock River Valley, patented land. He took out his second patent in the upper portion of the county on the river itself. On the river too was the first tract of land that we know to have been bought for the purpose of building a church thereon. It was purchased from John Barrow. The second tract of land bought was at the mouth of and on the south side of Occupacia Creek. It was bought for Sittingbourne Parish. The shores of many important creeks, as well as the shores of the river itself, were at some time the home of some preacher of Rappahannock County. As late as 1688, Dual Peade (Donel Prad) patented land at the mouth of and on the south side of Piscaticon (Piscataway) Creek. This patent was convenient by water to many settlements and to the churches; but by land, was less accessible. Even to him, after the departure of the Indians from the lower part of the county, the water appeared the simplest and best mode of transportation to his churches.

CHURCH VESTRIES

The parishes were first organized in those early days with eight vestrymen chosen by the vote of the free-holders to serve for life. When anyone of their number died or moved away, the remaining members of the vestry chose his successor. (Hening.) For this reason the vestry soon ceased to be an organization representing the people. The vestrymen, from among themselves, chose the church wardens in rotation to serve for two years each.(Beverley 212.) The church wardens were amenable to the county courts, and could be called in question and punished or fined if their offences so warranted.(Hening I,291.)

Since the parishes were a part of a governing organization of the county, they shared in and were supported by a regular county or parish levy. They do not seem to have had any other source of income until April 16,-1691, when an act was passed by the Assembly at James City providing that"one-third of all furs and skins shipped out of the county, and one-third of all fines levied for profanity be used for the Maintainance and encouragement of a pious ministry & be equally distributed among the ministers of God's Word incumbent in the several parishes of the county. (O.1692, p.227 B. Essex County.)

BURIAL PLACES

In 1661, all parishes were required "to set aside three or four burial places in their respective parishes to be used as public burial ground, each place to have a good fence kept about it, and no person slave or free to be buried in any other place than those appointed, unless during his lifetime he had signified his desire to be buried in some particular place elsewhere." (Hening 2, 63.) Most, if not all of these sites have perished. One is thought to be preserved at Belleview Farm on the Rappahannock River northeast of Dunnsville.

SOME PARISH DIFFICULTIES

Even as in the colony as a whole, the problem of the selection of acceptable clergy in this section was an almost continuous one. The blame for this trouble did not always lie in the character of the clergy as various petitions of the vestries might lead one to think. Sometimes the vestries themselves or certain members would try to dictate to their preachers in matters beyond their authority. In St. Stephens Parish, New Kent, now King and Queen, the vestry became so unpopular with the people that the latter met, drew up, and dispatched a signed petition protesting against the members of the vestry and asking the governor to allow them to choose by election a new vestry. The petition reads as follows:

"To the Right Honorable Sir Henry Chickley Kt. His Majesties Deputy Governor and Captain General of Virginia and to the Honorable Council of State:

"We, the subscribers, inhabitants, and house keepers of St. Stephens Parish in the County of New Kent Most Humbly Sheweth

"That your petitioners have been for several years past burdened with an illegal Vestry elected and made up for the major part without the knowledge or consent of the Parish as the law Injoynes; and of such Illiterate and Innorant men as are and have been ruled and over awed by one or two particular persons, who are so insulting and of such ill disposed and turbulent spirits & dispositions, that no minister cann or will stay with us, by which means the Service of God is wholly neglected, our Church gone to ruin, and Church discipline & government almost clearly laid aside.

"And for as much as our Parish is not destitute of such Able discreet and honest men as may fitly supply the places of several week and ignorant persons of the Vestry according to the good laws of this country, Your petitioners in all humility supplicateth your Honor that we have liberty to Elect and make choice of our own General vote of the inhabitants of our said Parish of persons for our vestry as in our judgment may seeme meet and convenient which will Indubitally tend to the Glory of God, and the peace and welfare of the whole Parish.

"And your Pet^rs as in all Humility and duty bound for yor honors, shall ever pray and etc. " (The foregoing petition was signed by the following men.)

INFLUENCE OF NATHANIEL BACON, JR., THE REBEL

Several laws enacted by the Assembly during Bacon's Rebellion were intended to better the relationship between the church governing powers and the laity. One of these would have gone far toward furthering the work of the church. The followers of Bacon realized that there was too little co-operation between the vestry and people of the pew. Too often the custom of the vestrymen choosing successors to deceased vestrymen led to the continuance of the same families in office for generations. The system left the people helpless to deal with arrogant and quarreling vestrymen chosen regardless of the people's desires. To ameliorate this hardship, Bacon's Assembly enacted the following statute:

"Whereas the long continuation of vestries in several parishes has caused a grievance for remedy whereof for the future free holders and free men should be allowed to elect 12 vestrymen in five years."(Hening 2, 356.)

The law hardly had time to function before Berkeley came back into power; and this act, along with all the other acts of Bacon's Assembly, was made null and void; and the laws governing vestries reverted to the original statutes. The people, however, did not easily surrender the objective of which Bacon had given them a glimpse; and they continued to voice protests against unpopular vestrymen. In the petition of the people of St. Stephens Parish, they sought the right to choose their vestry under the assumption that the law of Bacon's Assembly was still operative. Actually, at this time, in 1683, the vestry could choose its own new members.

SOME CHURCH LAWS, CUSTOMS, AND DIFFICULTIES

As only the local vestry had the power to employ preachers, the latter sometimes came and went in rapid succession. To fill the demands for new preachers, the Council at Jamestown sometimes offered as much as twenty pounds sterling for the importation of any minister into the colony.

The duty of the minister, once he was employed, was to comply with a rather strict program. He was ordered by law to preach every Sunday in a church or chapel of his parish. (H.2, 47.) He must preach the doctrine of the Church of England or "depart the colony with all convenience."(H.1,277.) He must read the Common Prayer of the Church or be deprived of the benefit of any part of the levy. (H.1, 342.) The minister must also keep the records of the Parish, the vestry book, and the register recording all deaths, births, and marriages. He must call meetings of the vestry from time to time as occasion necessitated. He must act as a judge and try most of the cases involving a breach of moral conduct. He was expected to see to it that all laws regulating the duties of parishoners to the church, such as attending the services and having their children christened, refraining from swearing, etc., were carried out. The clerk (minister) was expected to decide matters of domestic relationship and to look after the well-being of all orphans. As minister of the parish, he was known as and called the "Clerk of the Parish," and was generally designated and referred to in that capscity as "Clerk." Many of the registers kept by these clerks are in existence today.

During the latter years of Old Rappahannock County there was practically no religious freedom in the colony. Parents were compelled by law to take their children for baptism to the preacher of the parish in which they lived. (Colonial Papers, 1657-1687.) By an act of 1661, all Quakers and other non-conformists were required to pay a fine of two hundred pounds of tobacco whenever caught at their worship. (Hening 2, 48.) It was contrary to law for a non-conformist to try to seduce any person to accept his religious views. Captain Giles Brent of Stafford, across the county line from the upper portion of Sittingbourne Parish, Rappahannock County, was, on May 27, 1668, tried by the Gen eral Court at James City charged with seducing people to the Roman Catholic religion, but by the court was found not guilty. (MCGC, p. 511.)

Marriage licenses, prior to 1660, had been by custom issued by the governor of the colony. At that time, owing to the scarcity of preachers, which often made the publication of banns impossible, and thereby necessitated the more frequent granting of licenses, and owing also to the fact that the governor's knowledge of the prople could not extend to the end of the ever enlarging country, the eldest magistrate in each county was given authority to sign marriage licenses. A certified list of these marriages was required to be made annually to the governor by the clerk of the court.(H.2, 28.)

This plan does not appear to have worked long, for in 1661-2 marriage could be solomnized by a minister only after license was granted by the governor or his deputy, and after the curate of the several parishes had had time to announce the banns three times. (H.2, 49.) On October 25, 1669, at a General Court at James City, the Right Honourable the Governor in open court did constitute and appoint Henry Corbin, Esquire, to grant licenses for marriage in the Rappahannock River and no clerks of court to meddle in it. D.4, 206-7.) A fine of 100 pounds of tobacco was imposed on a parishoner for not informing the minister or reader of a birth, death, or marriage. Fifty pounds of the fine went to the informer who exposed the neglectful person, and fifty pounds to the minister for making the records. (H.2, 54.)

Other fees allowed by law for ministerial functions were: forty shillings or four hundred pounds for preaching a funeral sermon; twenty shillings for marriage by license; five shillings or fifty pounds of tobacco where simply the banns for marriage were proclaimed. (Beverly, p. 211.)

ESTABLISHMENT OF THE PARISHES

In a study of the several parishes of this section, the writer will, for the benefit of the reader, first give a brief outline of their order of establishment.

The first parish of this section on the southside of the Rappahannock River was Cheskyack Parish extending from the York to the Rappahannock. It had practically no parishioners on the Rappahannock River. Organized later and co-existing with it was old Northumberland County Parish on the north side of the river before Lancaster County was cut off from Northumberland County. Most of its communicants were near the Potomac.

When Lancaster was formed in 1652, all that part of those two old parishes lying along the Rappahannock River on both sides from its mouth to its head became the Parish of Lancaster. Sometime previous to 1656 when Rappahannock County was formed, the Parish of Lancaster was divided. The statute which directs the division of Lancaster County clearly indicates this fact, as the portion that remained in the new Lancaster County is declared to be the Parish of Lancaster. It is believed that the portion that fell in Rappahannock County was known as the Parish of Rappahannock. By 1662, there is evidence to indicate that the Parish of Rappahannock County had been divided and that the upper part of the county on both sides of the river was known as Sittingbourne Parish; and the lower part on both sides was known as Farnham Parish. These two parishes continued to embrace all of Rappahannock County until some years after Bacon's Rebellion.

The Parish of Sittingbourne was divided about 1684, when the upper end of the extensive county, embracing what is now Caroline and King George Counties, took the name of St. Mary's Parish. The lower end on the south side of the river took the name of St. Anne's Parish; and the lower end of the old Parish of Sittingbourne on the north side kept the name of Sittingbourne, the spelling of which soon became corrupted to Littingbourn.

EARLY PREACHERS
JOHN ROSIER

Some of the earliest evedence found of the existence of preachers and formation and activities of parishes is cited as follows:

John Rosier, here before mentioned as the first preacher in this section, had been in Virginia several years prior to 1650, but went back to England about that year and returned with his wife and several maids destined as brides for the colonists. For bringing these young women, he received rights for lands, and, no doubt, a little later marriage fees.

MR. CLEMOVANT

Apparently, before November Court, 1652, Mr. Clemovant served the parish, for at that court it was ordered that all those who were indebted to Mr. Clemovant, late minister of the county, "By subscriptions shall pay and satisfy the same to Col. Wm. Clayborn, Esq." (Lancaster County, Book 1, p.100.)

ALEXANDER COOK

Alexander Cook, minister, shortly after the formation of Lancaster County, wrote a letter dated September 26, 1652. He had visited the Lancaster section and wrote back stating the terms of the contract on which he would serve as minister for the parish. His statement that four or five of the vestry might be chosen upon his arrival would indicate that there was but one parish in all Northumberland and Lancaster prior to that time. He was reasonable in his terms, and said that the church might pay him in corn and tobacco or in tobacco alone as they might choose. This letter was recorded February 9, 1652(3). (L.1, 44.) At the April court, 1653, it was ordered that the people of Lancaster County should meet at the house of Mr. Thomas Brier to choose vestrymen and church wardens.(L.1, 44.)

CHARLES GRIMES

Charles Grimes, the next clerk, appears in the records on December 26, 1653. He patented 1,000 acres of land on Fleet's Creek just above and opposite Rappahannock Indian Town. (P.B.3, 73.) He did not stay long on this land.

REBUKE FOR SLANDEROUS WORDS.

December 8, 1653, Mary Robinson was required by court to appear at church the next Lord's Day and before the minister and congregation apologize for slanderous words she had used. Also Joane, the wife of William Thomas, for a similar offence was in "like manner and form required to appear and do likewise the next time the minister officiated up the river."

TWO PARISHES

A memorandum entry in Lancaster County records, dated August 7, 1653, states that - "The county of Lancaster is divided into two parishes. The inhabitants being summoned thereto giving their votes therein. The said lower parish to begin on the east side of Morattico Creek, and the east branch downward to the bounds between the two parishes, the upper and the lower," (L.1, 152.) The bounds of the upper parish later became the bounds of Rappahannock County.

By the 1656 levy, the old County of Lancaster set aside 10,716 pounds of tobacco for entertaining ministers. Just how this was apportioned, when later the same year the county was divided, and the upper parish became Rappahannock County and the lower parish became Lancaster County, is not described; but on November 7, 1657, Samuel Cole, clerk, was engaged as minister for the lower parish of Lancaster. A church was ordered to be built on Boswelle Point, the first point above the present site of Urbanna, and another church on the Corotoman River; and the glebe on the Piankatank was ordered to be sold to buy a horse for the minister. A vestry was chosen, and it was agreed that the preacher should receive four thousand pounds of tobacco as long as he was in the parish of Lancaster. (L. 2, 141.)

There is no record of a parish or church in the upper parts of the river this early, but as the courthouse had been built at Bushwood by 1655, it is probable that services were sometimes held in it in the early days. Also services seem to have been held on the southside in the vicinity of Nanzamum Indian Town, above the present town of Port Royal, where the Indians could be benefited or won to the gospel. Certain of the preachers of the time were earnest and zealous in their efforts to Christianize the Indians, and the planters were ready to give special protection and consideration to Christian Indians.

Another reason why a church was placed at this point was that in 1653 the court had ordered a ferry established across the river in the vicinity of Charles Grimes Point. Almost immediately after the division of old Lancaster County, Charles Grimes, clerk, patented 1,000 acres on the south side of the river over against the Doeges land above Nansemum Town.(PB.3,297.) William White, clerk, witnessed a deed in February 1655(6),(L.2, 25.), and patented 1,000 acres on the south side of the river in the upper part of the county in the vicinity of Nanzemum Town on January 5, 1657(8). William White and Martha, his wife, were at Lancaster Court in 1658 administering an estate.

Services were doubtless held in the lower part of what was soon to become Rappahannock County, and there may have been a chapel there, for, in 1656, Charles Grimes patented land on the north west side of Morattico Creek.(PB.4,49).

For some years, however, there is no other evidence of any church in the lower part of Rappahannock County. Nor did Grimes tarry long on his patent on Rappahannock Creek opposite the Rappahannock Indians, where he had hoped to serve the Indians and to organize a church community. No doubt he found the site not a good selection. Here the Rappahannock River was wide, and, on many Sundays, rough and dangerous of crossing from the south side. The roads overland were mere Indian paths, at this time unsafe for settlers to travel to church. Only ten years had passed since the bloody massacre that had forced the English to evacuate nearly all the occupied territory north of the York. It must have seemed safer to withdraw to the Nansemum section where there was a free ferry and the river was wide enough for worshipers to be safe from ambush by Indians, and yet not wide enough to be subject to great disturbance by storms.

SITTINGBOURNE PARISH

The first known church in Sittingbourne Parish was located just below the wide mouth of Occupacia Creek. The exactness of this location is attested by the fact that on January 24, 1662(3), John Barrow sold one acre of land to the parish of Sittingbourne, "lying square about the church, provided the said acre of land be none more otherwise employed and made use of by the said parish than for a church and burying place about the same." (D.2, 309.)

This land of Barrow's was first the land of Richard Coleman, and was early known as Richard Coleman's. This Coleman patent lay back of the large marsh across the river from historic Leedstown, the upper end reaching the river above the marsh near the present Otterburn house, the lower end running easterly along the back of the marsh to a spot on Cabin Point, a point lying between Coleman's Creek and the before described great marsh. The creek just above Layton's Wharf was originally known as Coleman's Creek. North of this creek the town known as Richard Coleman's was planted; and here was built the first church of the section of which we have any record. "Church Road" is referred to as leading there.

Many lots, comprising two to three acres each, were sold in this town. A grist mill was built.--Amory Butler, the preacher, had land here. There are references to a school-house path leading from it. Thus it is apparent that a school house was there. Very early Coleman had a trading post there. John Pain, merchant, succeeded him.

With the church located on a knoll back of the great marsh with the river bending in front of it, the people could easily come to it in boats. They could make fast their craft at the upper side of Coleman's patent, and walk over-land to services. By this short cut more than two miles of water travel was eliminated. Though the site was so accessible and safe, it was unfortunate in being near two swamps overabounding in mosquitoes and malaria. After some years it was necessary to abandon it and move to another location.

It was held as church property as late as 1677, for in that year John Barrow gave one hundred acres of land to Peter Foxsom, who was about to marry his eldest daughter. This deed of gift was for the most easterly portion of the original six hundred acre patent of Richard Coleman, and was that part of the main-land back of Coleman's Creek. The acre given to Sittingbourne Parish in 1662 was included in the survey, but was not given to Peter Foxsom in the deed. Thus it is evident that as late as that date, Sittingbourne Parish was in possession of the acre. We locate it exactly because the land north of the creek at Cabin Point is very low, scarcely more than two or three feet above very high tide, and quite unsuited for church property. Since this acre was given to be used as a site for a church and a burial place, one must conclude that it was on the south side of Coleman's Creek near the river where the land is high and dry.

Thus is definitely placed the oldest known church site in all the Rappahannock River valley above the Corotoman. Here for years, with their guns by their sides, the pioneers assembled Lord's Day after Lord's Day for the worship of God. With the passing of time, they too perished; but there is left unto this day the little graveyard where they sleep. It is marked by a grove of beautiful trees, but marred by bushes, briers, and vines, unkept and forgotten. To the passing mariner on the river, or the straying pedestrian, the presence of the green cedar trees has no meaning. Yet there they stand to mark the spot where a number of our earliest pioneer forefathers, who fought back the Indians and cleared away the wilderness, lie in peace. Longitude 76° 59' 55" and Latitude 38° 5' and 40".

The lower or second church of Sittingbourne Parish referred to in the records of the county was at latitude 38° 1' and longitude 76° 55' 30", on the outer lower point of Occupacia Creek. The place is marked to this day by a heavy granite slab over the grave of Henricus Oswell, Chirugus, born at Kirkdillie in Scotland, and of Patre Thomas Oswell, born 1694, died 1725(6). It carried a Latin verse. No doubt the cemetery was still in use when Oswell was buried. The best remaining monuments were recently moved to Vawters Church yard.The old church stood on the crown of the bluff some thirty feet above the river.

The deed to this land was given by Peter Johnson, who sold four acres "with apurtenances" to the vestry of Sittingbourne Parish on October 10, 1664, for the consideration of five hundred pounds of tobacco. This land was described as "lying and being in the parish aforesaid on the south point that maketh the mouth of a creek called Occupacy, and to be laid as near as may be square on the said point the same to have and to hold, &c."(W.I, 32-34.) This was recorded in the court of Rappahannock County "2 die 9 bris AD 1665 a^{d} Superda."

This deed for the lower church lands, for which Francis Doughty was the preacher, was put to record only one day before Doughty was re-engaged for two years service. It is evident that there were plans to erect a church on this site at an early date.

Peter Johnson also sold one additional acre of land adjoining the four acre tract, for in Deed Book 5, pages 276-8, of Rappahannock County, in 1673-4, Robert Synock sold his place to John Bagwell "except the five acres where the church is now standing, the same that Peter Johnson sold to the parish of Sittingbourne." In Rappahannock County Records, Deed Book 4, page 251, the location of the church lands is defined as at the fork between the two branches of Occupacia Creek. We find that later the location of the Glebe Land was on the north side of Occupacia Creek. The old Glebe house still stands on the farm owned by W. F. Keck.

JOHN PHILLIPS

The names of the following ministers of the parish are found in the records in connection with the ownership of property:

John Phillips, preacher, on June 14, 1655, patented 1300 acres upon a creek proceeding out of Occupacia Creek and "beginneth upon the northernmost branch of the said creek called Wassamasson." (PB 3,351.) This land had formerly been granted to Richard Coleman.(PB.3,142.)

JUSTIN AYLMER

Justin Aylmer, clerk, owned 1400 acres of land on the east side of Pepitick Creek before 1673. (D.3, 167.)

AMORY BUTLER

The next minister known to follow him was Amory Butler, brother to William Butler, minister of Washington Parish. (W.2, 113.) Amory Butler arrived in the parish sometime before May 1672, for on that date he was planning to be married to Mrs. Elizabeth Catlett, widow of Col. John Catlett. (O. 5, 20-21.) Butler served Sittingbourne Parish 1674.(D. 5, 336.)He died in 1678, and his will is recorded in Will Book 2, page 113. In it he named his brother, William.

JOHN DAVIS

John Davis appeared in court in 1688 and collected 3000 pounds of tobacco, the balance of his salary due him from the Parish of Sittingbourne for the year 1684. (O. 2, 82.)

John Davis, clerk, appeared in court July 1, 1683. (O. 1, 140.)

Thomas Perkins

There were 870 pounds of tobacco due Mr. Thomas Perkins, minister, late of Sittingbourne Parish, deceased, for the year 1683. The court ordered that paid to the executor of his estate. (). 1, 235.)

ABRAHAM KENYAN

In 1685, Abraham Kenyan, clerk, bought land in Sittingbourne Parish with Andrew Buckner. (D. 7, 206.)

[Note by Miss Elizabeth Hawes Ryland, 100 West Franklin St., Richmond, Virginia. No probate date is shown on the above writing and there is nothing to show that it is a copy of the recorded document. We are therefore disposed to believe that it is a preliminary draught made by the testator himself. That a will of John Camm was probated in the King and Queen court and lost in the destruction of that county's records during the Civil War, is indicated by reference to such a will in the will of Ann Booker probated in the Essex courts, Dec. 18, 1775. The will of Mrs. Ann Booker was given in Virginia Colonial Abstracts, Volume 7. p.80. This will should be considered in connection with that of her father, John Camm, shown above.
